FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

From the London Magazine for August, 1748.

FROM Hanover we hear, that his majesty has appointed sir Thomas Robinson, who has, for several years been his minister at Vienna, to be joint-plenipotentiary with the earl of Sandwich at Aix-la-Chapelle; for which last place sir Thomas set out on the 19th instant, N.S. and it is said, carried along with him his majesty's approbation of the definitive treaty of peace drawing up at Aix-la-Chapelle, a plan of which had been sent to Hanover for that purpose.

The 7th instant, N.S. his royal highness the duke of Cumberland set out from the head quarters at Eyndhoven for Hanover, where he arrived the 9th, and, it was thought, would have staid there for some time, as the palace of Montbrillant, near Herenhausen, had been prepared for his reception; but, in a few days, he set out again for Eyndhoven, where he arrived on the 22d.

The disturbances in Holland are not yet quite over, especially at Amsterdam, where the burghers presented lately the following remonstrance to their magistrates, viz. "The under-signed burghers and citizens of the city of Amsterdam represent, with all possible respect, that having deliberated together upon the disagreeable state of our country, exhausted of its finances on one side, and on the other side, on the loss of our privileges and prerogatives, of which we have long been deprived; we thought it our indispensable duty to endeavour, as much as in us lies, to co-operate towards the redress of the said Points. For these causes we have unanimously agreed to lay before your noble and venerable lordships, for the present, three salutary articles, beseeching you, as our duty is, to have the goodness to approve and find them just, as they are in effect, and to grant us a gracious answer. The articles are:

I. We demand, that your noble lordships would at last be pleased, in imitation of the other cities of Holland, voluntarily to deliver up the post-offices to his serene highness, and leave them in his disposition, trusting entirely, as we do, that this father of his country neither desires to make, nor will make, any other use of them, than what is for the good of the country in general, and this city in particular.

II. That you would be pleased also, as fathers of the burghers, and inhabitants of this city, in conformity to the nervous proposition made at the Hague the 25th of June last, by his serene highness to their noble and great mightinesses, to remove, as soon as possible, all lawful subject of complaint, with respect to the abuses that are crept into the collation of places, by introducing, without delay, the means of redress established by their noble and great mightinesses, in the resolution of the 11th of Nov. 1747, and the 31st of Jan. 1748; and that, for the future, places be bestowed only on natural or naturalized citizens, inhabitants of this city.

III. We beseech your noble and venerable lordships, that the burghers, according to the tenor of antient charters, be restored to their privileges and prerogatives, of which they have been so long deprived; and that, in like Manner, to prevent all murmurs, and further disorders, your noble and venerable mightinesses would deign to resolve, that, for the future, the colonels and captains of the burghers be chosen out of the body of the burghers themselves, and be incapable of the magistracy or regency; and, if they are elected to the latter, that they shall be under an obligation to surrender their military employment, previously to their acceptance of the other. By doing which, &c."

All the letters from France are full of the vast preparations they are making for restoring their marine. Ships are daily arriving, loaded with all sorts of naval stores; and the king has lately purchased of the duke of Chevreuse, at the rate of 1,500,000 Livres, the forest of Chateaudun, in which there are great quantities of timber trees, proper for the royal navy.

From Spain we have lately two very extraordinary accounts. One is, that the king has resolved to pay all the debts of his father, and the other is, that, by two register-ships lately arrived from Havanna, the king has letters from don Alonzo d'Arcos Moreno, governor of Cuba, informing him, that, on the 8th of April last, the English squadron made an attempt upon St. Jago, but met with so hot a reception from the artillery of the castle of Morro, that they were obliged to retire, after having one of their stoutest ships sunk to the bottom: That on the 10th, they made a second attack, without any success; and, that they afterwards sail'd for Jamaica.

Advices from Vienna say, that an edict has been lately issued there, by which the prelates and ecclesiasticks are enjoyned to make sale to laymen of all the estates they have purchased, without permissions, since the year 1609; the court being resolved to buy such as may not meet with other purchasers, at a reasonable price.

The Russian troops, after having advanced as far as Bamberg in Franconia, and, consequently, within about a week's march of the Rhine, were obliged to stop, and have begun to march back into their own country, in consequence of the convention lately signed at Aix-la-Chapelle. Their commander in chief, prince Repnin, died at Bamberg on the 10th instant, N.S. of a fit of the apoplexy; which, we hope, was not occasioned by his chagrin upon his receiving orders to return home.

There has been, for some time past, most terrible insurrections at Constantinople, in which above 4000 people have lost their lives: However, the mob so far prevailed at last, as to oblige the sultan to depose the prime vizir, and to appoint the aga of the janizaries in his room.

From Poland and Hungary we have still most dismal accounts of the damage done by the locusts; but, in Poland, the damage would have been much more considerable, had it not been for the storks, a great flock of which have gathered together, and follow and devour the locusts wherever they go.

The discontent of the burghers of Amsterdam has been much increas'd, by the evasive answer of the magistrates to their petition; and on the 29th, N.S. they made these new proposals, 1st. That the prince stadtholder be desired to come to Amsterdam; 2dly, That the burghers submit all their grievances to his decision; and, 3dly, That he be authorized to make what alterations he pleases in their regency.

Extract of a Letter from Aix-la-Chapelle, dated August 16.

'Ever since the 11th, the Plenipotentiaries of Holland, Sardinia, and Spain, have taken up their Dwelling about a Quarter of a League from hence, upon the Top of an Hill, which commands the whole City. They have pitched Tents upon this Eminence, and entertain each other therein by Rotation: To-day one treats, and To-morrow another. This Party of Encampment was proposed to Count Caunitz and the Duke de St. Severin; but it's said they refused to be of it, with a View of taking the Opportunity of the other Ministers to see one another freely, and without Constraint, as these Lords now actually do, every Day dining together at each other's Houses. The Appearance of Intimacy and Friendship between these two Ministers, which, it's thought, cover some important Matters, gives great Umbrage to the other Plenipotentiaries, especially those of Holland and Sardinia, and tho', it's said, give-Riſe to the Encampment upon the Hill, that they might likewiſe have the Liberty of freely conſulting each other, and that alſo of ſtudying their reſpective Inſtructions how to conduct themſelves at the enſuing Congreſs.

M. Ammon, Miniſter from Pruſſia, though not aggregated to the Body of the pacifick Aſſembly, is likewiſe of the myſterious Party. But that which moſt perplexes the ſhort-ſighted People, though not the clear-headed, is, that the Marquis de Soto Major ſhould mix with the encamped Party. The Duke de St. Severin, we are told, does not take the leaſt Umbrage at it: One may therefore conclude, that it's a Thing concerted betwix t the French and Spaniſh Miniſters, and that the Latter has engaged with the Mountaineers, in order to have the better Opportunity of talking with, & hearing them ſpeak their Sentiments, and by this Means of diſcovering all the Points, which the Miniſters of Holland and Turin are charged to diſcuſs upon the Opening of the Conferences. Though all this may poſſibly be very innocent, yet it appears as though there were yet ſome Difficulties to remove, before the Peace can be rendered durable.

An Extract of a Letter from a Perſon of Rank at Aix-la-Chapelle, dated Auguſt 20.

'The Plenipotentiaries who a few Days ago encamped upon the Hill, about a Mile from the City, have ſtruck their Tents, evacuated their Camp, and return'd into Quarters, and this before any Evacuation is made of the Conquefts in Italy, or thoſe in the Low Countries, and before the Signing of the Peace, which we have been by the publick Papers made to believe would ſoon be effected. The Writers of the Dutch Gazettes being afraid of telling any more Falſities, talk no longer affirmatively upon theſe Points. The Month of July, and indeed that of Auguſt, before the End of both which, the Peace was, according to the Intelligence we had from them, to be ſigned, and the Places evacuated, are now out of the Queſtion; but at preſent they ſay, it's thought theſe Things will be brought about ſometime in the Month of September. It's high time for them to begin to talk in a leſs poſitive Strain, in order to preſerve their Reputation, and the Sale of their Gazettes. Whatever prophetick Sciences the ableſt even of the Miniſters Plenipotentiary may be poſſeſſed of, there is none of them can poſitively ſay when the Peace will be ſign'd, or whether the Evacuations will be made this Year or the next. It's true, as a reſpectable Miniſter the other Day ſaid, that in a ſhort Time the Clouds, which ſtill render theſe Matters obſcure, will probably be diſſipated, and that we ſhall be able by the Middle of next Month to ſee more clearly, and know what to depend on; but this is far from being certain & abſolute. And though the Plenipotentiaries every Day eat, drink, dance and play together, yet the Work of the general Pacification does not a Jot advance the more for it, nor does this prevent the Levy of Men both for Land and Sea, which France is diligently making, nor hinder the large Convoys of Ammunition and Proviſion which are ſending to Bergen-op-Zoom and Maeſtricht, no more than it does the Auſtrians from raiſing Recruits in ſuch a Manner as ſurprizes every Body. Nevertheleſs, the ſigning the Preliminaries was generally look'd upon as a certain and infallible Prelude to the ſigning of the Peace itſelf.'

Madrid, July 22. 'The more impatient the Public appears to be to penetrate the Motives of the Confinement of M. de Macanas, the leſs is it poſſible to diſcover them. It is the Subject however of a great deal of Converſation, both at the Palace, and in the City. There are People who aſſert, that Spain never had a more zealous and faithful Miniſter than M. de Macanas. Stripp'd of every Thing, and baniſhed by the Inquiſition, thirty-five Years ago, he employ'd his Leiſure in writing ſeveral curious Piece. During the Space of ſixteen Years, the King, then Princes of Aſturias, paid him a Penſion in France, and his Majeſty even kept up a regular Correſpondence with this Miniſter. 'Tis ſaid at preſent, that he has been carried from Pampelana to Segovia, to prevent the Conſequences that were to be expected from the Murmurings of the Inhabitants of the former City on his being confined.

Berlin, Aug. 21. His Majeſty and all the Royal Family are in good Health, and the Court as brilliant as ever. In this Relaxation from War the Troops are to make a feigned Campaign, which is to be cloſed by a fictitious Siege, for which, as ſome Preparations were to be made, the Politicians at Hamburg look upon all this as a Feint, and affirm we are on the Point of going into the Field in earneſt. The French Ambaſſador Valori is gone to Paris, and this Day with ſome of his great News. The Count de Chotteck's Horſes are ſome of them arrived, but No-body knows when the Count himſelf will leave Vienna, this, they ſay, is greater News. But if the Peace, like the Preliminaries, ſhould be made Piece mail, it would be the greateſt News of all. The King is much intereſted in that Affair, and may poſſibly take it ill if he is neglected; he has recommended the Care of his Concerns to two Courts, who have Miniſters there; and if after all they ſhould be poſtponed, he will be found in a Way to take good Care of them himſelf. Thus reaſon the Politicians here, who, notwithſtanding, are all in the Dark. But for all that, ſome of them like Gipſies, gueſs very ſhrewdly.
